

EVOLUTION, RELIGION AND NATURAL LAW : IS THERE A COMMON GROUND?

A BOOK PANEL ON CRAIG BOYD'S A SHARED MORALITY: A NARRATIVE DEFENSE OF NATURAL LAW ETHICS

Do secular and religious ethics share a moral common ground? Every moral tradition currently negotiates a complex set of competing sources: traditional natural law claims, scientific data on human capacities as well as postmodern ethical priorities. By setting out and analysing proposals contained in the Craig Boyd's recently published book A Shared Morality: A Narrative Defense of Natural Law Ethics, this panel of scholars will discuss the state of contemporary natural law ethics in the context of scientific, religious and other challenges.

Hall Building 767
 Thursday, November 5
 2 pm – 5 pm

Dr. Craig Boyd
 (Azusa Pacific University, Los Angeles)

Dr. Paul Allen
 (Concordia University)

Dr. F. LeRon Shults
 (University of Agder, Norway)

Dr. Thomas Oord
 (Northwest Nazarene University, Nampa, Idaho)

Dr. Amos Yong
 (Regent University, Virginia)